INTERNATIONAL
MARKETING

Instructors:
Dorvin Jan Acuña
Wella Marie D. Alacio

Module 1
Overview of World Business

Challenges and opportunities

You can use it to evaluate performance in the real world, not a simple side-by-side comparison. The focus is on using a business approach to explaining the complexity of business.

Learning Outcomes:

After reading and studying this module, you should be able to:

1. Distinguish among strategic marketing, foreign marketing, comparative marketing, global marketing and world marketing
2. Determine if domestic marketing and international marketing are different only in scope but not in nature
3. Explain the following criteria used to identify MNCs: (a) size, (b) structure, (c) performance, and (d) behaviour
4. Distinguish among: (a) ethnocentricity, (b) polycentricity, and (c) geocentricity
5. Determine the benefits of international marketing

PRE-TEST

For each pair of statements below, determine if both statements are correct (write TT), both statements are false (write FF), only the first statement is true (write TF) and only the second statement is correct (write FT).

1. A standardized product is exported to other countries with almost zero changes. Product standardization is used to sustain a consistent product image.
2. Electrical standard is an optional product modification factor. An international marketer may or may not comply with optional product modification requirements.
3. A product that has more benefits over existing alternatives may gain early
